

The Kraken

A huge mythological creature appears and cuts the undersea cables. Each player with the most clusters in the cloud destroys one of their clusters.

US-East Down

It's always the DNS... and US-East. The current player destroys one of their clusters.

Cloud Misconfiguration

The cloud providers messed up. Shuffle all the clusters in play. Each player plays them face down. Each player reveals one cluster down.

New Vulnerability Disclosure

A new vulnerability is found and POC start appearing. The current player may pick up one defense card from the discard pile. If there are none, they destroy one of their clusters.

Hardware Recommissioning

Reduce, reuse, recycle. Shuffle cards from the discard pile back into the deck.

Compliance audit

Time to test if we did a good job. Each player takes a card from their hand and passes it face down to the next player. If a player has no cards in hand, he does not pass anything.

CrashLoopBackOff

Shit happens, or so they say. No attacks can be played during next player's turn.

Crunch time

I love deadlines. I love the whooshing noise they make as they go by. Current player takes an extra turn after this one.
